‘Moving Forward and Climbing Upward: The Development of Policy Process Research’

The Policy & Society Lecture Series aims to attract leading academics and practitioners to our research department to discuss issues of relevance to our research agenda on the interaction between policy and society. The Lecture Series is organized by the research cluster Policy & Society, but is open for participation by anyone from the Public Administration Department (and beyond), but please register with a reply to this e-mail (vanostaijen@fsw.eur.nl).

Christopher Weible is associate professor at the School of Public Affairs of the University of Colorado, Denver. He is also editor of Policy Studies Journal, one of the top-10 journals in the field of Public Administration. Weible has published extensively on theories of the policy process, particularly on how to explain policy change or stability. Several of his publications, such as on the advocacy coalition framework (with Paul Sabatier) and on new theories of the policy process (with Edella Schlager) have become key references in our field.
